WICHITA MARKETS

The Receipts of Stock at the Wichita Union Stock Yards for the Past 48 Hours Were as Follows: 57 Cattle, 301 Hogs, Shipments, 54 Cattle.

CATTLE

Wichita, July 27.
The cattle market opened about steady at Saturday's prices and considering the small receipts, trading was rather lively, being confined entirely to the speculators. The receipts consisted principally of the lower grades and but very little butchers' stuff, such as in demand, was on the market.

The following are the closing quotations:

THE FIRST OF ITS KIND.
AMERICA HAS SEEN NO OTHER
GOLDEN EPISCOPAL JUBILEE.

Honors for Archbishop Kenrick, of St. Louis, in whose Time Ninety-nine Associates Have Passed Away and Nearly All the Catholic Sees Have Been Created.

St. Louis is making great preparations for the observance of the golden episcopal jubilee of its Roman Catholic archbishop—an event of more than local interest from the fact that he is the oldest prelate in the United States in point of service in the episcopate and the only one who, since his church was cut off from dependence on an English superior, has lived to see the preparations required by the canons of the church for the celebration of the golden jubilee of his consecration. Priests have reached the golden jubilee of their reception into the priesthood, but it is a fact which seems to have been overlooked that Archbishop Kenrick is the only prelate in any denomination in America, so far as official diocesan records show, who has lived to attain the distinction of a golden jubilee in the episcopate.

There are other incidents in his life that give a peculiar and general interest to this celebration. He is the only prelate who has attended every council of the church in the United States. He was but three years the junior in the episcopate of John Hughes, a statue to whom was unveiled in St. John's college grounds, Fordham, the other day, and since he assumed the mitre and crozier ninety-nine bishops in the United States have laid them down in the United States.

There is a priest on the mission when there was only one archdiocese—Baltimore, of which his brother, Francis Patrick Kenrick, a predecessor of Cardinal Gibbons, was later the sixth archbishop. Since his time eleven new archdioceses have been established—Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Milwaukee, New York, Oregon City, Philadelphia, St. Louis, St. Paul, San Francisco and Santa Fe—and he has also seen sixty-eight new suffragan sees created by Rome in America.

The great span of existence covered during his episcopate can be imagined from the enumeration of the sees that have been widowed in his priestly days. Death has paid six visits to the Baltimore see, five to New Orleans, four to each of the sees of Chicago, Hartford and Vincennes, three visits each to Charleston, Detroit, Mobile, New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, two to Alton, Boston, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Green Bay, Louisville, Mergentheim, Nashville, Natchez, Omaha, Oregon, Richmond, San Francisco and Santa Fe, while the sees of Buffalo, Columbus, Fort Wayne, Indian Territory, Natchitoches, Neosho, Portland, Providence, San Antonio and Vancouver island have each lost a bishop since his episcopal career began. The impression made by his years of service is heightened by the knowledge that his memory runs back to the days of the first Catholic bishop of the United States, John Carroll, who was a delegate to Canada in the interest of the cause evoked, or rather affirmed, by the Declaration of American Independence.

Peter Richard was born in the sixth year of the present century, on Aug. 17, in the city of Dublin. He studied in Maynooth, and was ordained on March 6, 1833. At that time his brother, whose incumbency of the Baltimore archdiocese has been noted, was bishop of Philadelphia. In 1833 the future archbishop of St. Louis came to America, took charge of the Theological seminary in the City of Brotherly Love, assumed management of the Catholic parish and at the same time edited The Catholic Herald—one of the two or three papers of his faith existing in those days, where over one hundred prosper to-day. Naturally his energy and ability attracted attention, and Dr. Rasati, then bishop of St. Louis, induced the pope to make him his coadjutor in that see. He was consecrated on Nov. 31, 1841, and two years later, on the death of Bishop Rasati, he succeeded to the administration of the see, which in 1845 was raised to metropolitan rank.

The programme in his honor will extend over three days, beginning Nov. 29; will include addresses from many bodies and conclude on the third evening with a grand torchlight parade.

Furniture, 20 Cents; Dogs, 5 C.

One of the assessors relates an odd experience in Brockton, near Indianapolis. He called at the house of an old woman whose furniture was valued at fifty cents. Under the law he had to place the value at one dollar, which would make her tax a fraction over one cent. As he was about to leave the house he discovered that the old woman was the happy owner of six dogs, on which she was assessed $11.—Chicago Mail.

PRINCE GEORGE OF GREECE.
Favorable Impression Produced by His Recent Visit to America.

Prince George of Greece, who is making a tour around the world, has just crossed the United States and gained hosts of friends and admirers everywhere. "A thoroughly good fellow," is the popular verdict. "A magnificent specimen of manhood," is the description of all who admire his noble beauty, for Prince George is as tall as Abraham Lincoln, as massive and impressive as Daniel Webster, and yet quite fine featured and shapely. He is thorough master of his profession (he is a naval officer), and astonished Commander Erben, of the Brooklyn navy yard, by his minute acquaintance with the mechanical details of the shipping. He is traveling in a ship, as the phrase goes in Europe—that is, he is known only by his lowest title, and accepts no official courtesies; but the Greeks and Russians in New York entertained him in fine style.

It is an odd fact that this Greek prince really has not a drop of Greek blood in him. His father was simply Prince George of Denmark, and became king of Greece in 1863 by vote of the national assembly, and his mother is a daughter of the Grand Duke Constantine of Russia. However, this is the rule in Europe; nearly all the reigning families are of other blood than the people they reign over. Danish predominating at present. King George and Queen Olga have six children. The Duke of Sparta and their apparent, Constantine; this Prince George, who was born at Corfu, June 24, 1859; the Princess Alexandra, Prince Nicolas, Princess Marie and Prince Andre.

A Check on Railway Engineers.

"Fixing the responsibility" is a great thing in case of a railway accident. With this idea in view a number of American railroads, says a scientific journal, are introducing a newly invented instrument. It consists of a dial which shows the actual speed the train is making, in addition to recording this information on a chart for preservation. In its action it is dependent upon the power transmitted directly from the axle, and can readily be adjusted to compensate for any wear of the wheels that takes place. This instrument acts as a check upon engineers by accurately showing the speed of the train at all parts of the road. Many of the accidents to trains are due to too rapid running on curves and difficult parts of the road, and this device by its action is intended to do away with this evil.

The Fireflies Out in Force.

One of the glories of a summer evening in the country is the brilliant display given by the fireflies. It would seem that lately the people of Ringgold, Ga., have been more than ordinarily favored in this respect. The other night it is said that countless fireflies issued from neighboring mountain ridges and took the course of the Chickamauga river, which skirts that city on its southern border. The display was grand. Trunks of trees bordering the river were plainly visible a quarter of a mile distant, and the entire mountain side was illuminated. The horde of fireflies was fully forty feet high and it took a quarter of an hour to pass down the stream, extending over a mile along its course.

He Can Talk Three Tongues.

There are several queer things to be noted in connection with the case of George Frank, alias Frenchy No. 1, alias Amner Ben Ali, the Algerian who was recently convicted by a New York jury of murder in the second degree. The man was accused of killing and dismembering a disreputable old woman known to the thugs as Carrio Brown, alias Shakespeare.

Frenchy No. 1, Shakespeare, the ferocity of the crime and its similarity to the Whitechapel horrors suggested that the perpetrator was "Jack the Ripper." After his arrest Frenchy showed no sign of being able to speak anything save an Arabic patois, and at the trial much difficulty was had in securing an interpreter.

Circumstantial evidence, backed up by the testimony of doctors, who found the blood stains on the prisoner's clothes identical with the gore drawn from the veins of the victim, decided the case in favor of the state. The verdict was a surprise to the public and a disappointment alike to the prosecution and defense, who had practically made the issue one of "liberty or death." The only one satisfied seems to be Frenchy, who, now that his life is no longer in jeopardy, has developed quite a facility for conversation in French and English.

Hard Times in the Argentine.

The commerce of the Argentine Republic seems to have received a tremendous setback of late. The trade returns for the first three months of 1891 show that imports of coal during the quarter have declined 30 per cent., and of iron 50 per cent., as compared with the corresponding period of the previous year. Imports of pine lumber have fallen from $2,500,000 in the first quarter of 1890 to $1,700,000 in 1891. Cotton goods have fallen from 1,650 tons to 950, a decline of 40 per cent. Other importations have also fallen so as to make the total decline in the first three months fully 50 per cent. The exports in aggregate remain stationary.

An Unusually Death.

Isaac Dixon, several months ago came to this country from England and went to work as a laborer in a rolling mill at Passaic, N. J. He drank ice water to excess Thursday and died Saturday as a result. Since then it has come to light that he had lived seven months longer he would have received a large estate in England. Why he came here and hired out as a laborer no one appeared to know. He was to be married within a few weeks to a young lady of Passaic.
